

Optimized determination of the radiological inventory during different phases of decommissioning

Conclusions:

- The specific requirements for characterization are associated with the milestones during decommissioning
- The amount of activity does not directly correspond to the radiological hazard potential of the facility